INTRODUCTION

The Workers' Educational Association's Barnburgh and Harlington Local History and Heritage Group was founded in May 2002. Since then we have been successful in being awarded a grant from the Countryside Commission's Local Heritage Initiative. This has enabled us to establish a digital community archive and to produce this book.

We would also like to thank the following, without whose help this book would not have been possible

FOREWORD

Barnburgh Board School

Log 28th October 1902

I took the 1st class for a walk this afternoon.

We left school at 2.10 after marking the registers.

The children took note paper and pencils.

They noticed the hoof marks on a chestnut tree,
the next year's buds, the colouring of the falling leaves, the grubs in oak apples. Pointed out the cardinal points from the sun also noted a pond,
hills, valleys, plantation, meadows, cliffs etc.

We climbed higher than the tower of the church
then sat down and repeated their recitation.

The headstone is too weathered to make out all the inscriptions, but some are discernable and from the school logs we know who is buried here:

Born February 1883. Died January 1885 aged 1 year 11 months. Gertrude Joyce

Crumpler. Born October 1887. Died September 1892. Aged 5
