

The Curwen Heritage Theatre presents

Cumbrian Story Project

The Allonby Sea Wives

written by H.C. Ivison and directed by Ian Hinde

Cast includes:

David Saltom as The Storyteller

Members of the Curwen Heritage
Theatre and Local Children

Playing at:

Allonby, on the Green

– AUGUST 10TH

Songs of the Sea Festival, Maryport

– AUGUST 11TH

Battle of Curwen Hall, Mill Field,
Workington – AUGUST 17TH

Hutton in the Forest, on the Lawn

– AUGUST 18TH

Performance times: 1.30pm, 2.30pm, 3.30pm at all venues

Our story for Summer 2002 is

'The Allonby Sea Wives'.

A story of betrothal, jealousy and mysterious deaths set against the dramatic seascape of Allonby.

The Cumbrian Story Project is a two year project, and we hope to tour around Cumbria to collect anecdotes and local folk tales that we can use in future productions.

In this way a small part of local history will entertain locals and visitors alike, be brought to life and retained for the future. You are invited to come along and share your tales after each performance.

The Curwen Heritage Theatre have ten years of experience in performing Shakespeare around the county Heritage sites. For the first time, we are using a professional actor as our storyteller; he has been working with the amateur cast and local people to make this very much a community project.

We are grateful for the support, advice and financial assistance that the following organisations have made.

triple aitch

Calouste
Gulbenkian
Foundation

CUMBRIA
COMMUNITY FOUNDATION

Local Heritage initiative

Photography by S. J. STUDIOS